Foreword

Dear Friends,

During our four years at Oxford High, the class of 1959 has come to be known as "the class who had to be different." This is well exemplified by our Senior "dress-up days" and our having been the first group to have had round class rings. This spirit of originality has been the key to our individual social, scholastic, and religious lives.

We have been blessed with capable leaders and teachers who have given us many valuable keys to open many doors. Whether they be typewriter keys, musical keys, or the keys to some future job, we feel fortunate to have been able to accept them.

It is with great pleasure, therefore, that we present Ravelin's for Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-nine, with its original theme—"Keys to Success."

Dedication

The Class of 1959 proudly dedicates this issue of Ravelin's to Mr. Clayton A. Stafford.

His fine spirit of cooperation has been the keynote to the success of many senior endeavors. With his understanding nature and spontaneous smile, he has accepted many requests for his able assistance. Jobs which seemed too big to ask, came back perfectly executed, and polished off with a smile.

To Mr. Stafford may we express our sincere gratitude and best wishes.

"Nuts in May"

Class History

As the day of graduation draws near, memories of our first hectic days at Oxford High School seem quite vivid and real. Our class numbered one hundred and one, as we timidly entered school as Freshmen on September 5, 1955. However once we became settled, our fears and bewilderment vanished, and we became quite envious of the "know-all" Seniors. Of course many Freshmen were sent to the wrong classrooms by prankster members of the upper classes, who relished the look of complete embarrassment on the poor underclassman faces. We were also given the first tables in the cafeteria, so we could be viewed by the other students, the rooms on the top floor, so we could lose a few extra pounds; and much to our complete amazement but satisfaction, the front row seats in the auditorium . . . the only feeling of superiority the Freshmen have over the Seniors. We learned quickly and at our first class meeting we elected Daniel Roy as president; Robert Wood as vice-president; Alice Vigeant, secretary; and Janice LaPlante, treasurer. Elected as Student Council Representatives were: Cynthia Benzie, James Nicholson, and Joseph Plante.

During the spring the school play "Mr. Beane From Lima" was presented and the active Freshman Class was represented by Sandra Richardson and CarolAnn Krals. Surviving our first year and experiences with finals, Nineteen fifty-five came to a fast halt with the annual picnic at Wallum Lake.

In September of 1956, ninety-one students returned to school, with the rank of Sophomore. Now we could laugh and harass the Freshmen, for it was our year to shine. The class meeting was held late in September and elected as president was Daniel Roy; Robert Wood as vice-president; Alice Vigeant, secretary; and Janice LaPlante as treasurer. Barry Casey, Jacqueline Rider and Jean Wilkes served as Student Council Representatives. The acting talents of Donald Dimock, Sandra Richardson, and Carol Ann Krals were displayed in the school play "Miss Alma Mater." Desiring to become known as the class to break an old tradition and to start a new, we chose round rings with the symbolic pirate crest, from the Josten Ring Company. Many hidden talents of the Sophomores blossomed in the variety show "Oklahoma." This year came to an end with our annual picnic at Wallum Lake.

Seventy-eight Juniors returned in September of 1957 with high hopes for a successful year. With a class full of fine potentials for leadership, Robert Wood was elected president; Daniel Roy, vice-president; Jean Wilkes, secretary; and Janice LaPlante, treasurer. Among the students heading the Student Council were Alice Vigeant, vice-president, and CarolAnn Krals as treasurer. Representatives were Barry Casey, Robert Krasinsky, and Jean Wilkes. Our Junior prom was a fabulous affair, with Sandra Markarian reigning as our queen. Her lovely attendants were Joy Beals, Frances Germain, Janice LaPlante, and Alice Vigeant.

The Junior Class was represented in the presentation of the play, "The Nervous Wreck" by Loran Robbins, Barry Casey, Donald Dimock, and John Dwyer. This busy year finally ended with the picnic at Wallum Lake.

At last we were elevated to the rank of Seniors. Seventy-two rather cocky students were the new leaders as school began on September fifth, 1958. Election of class officers was held, with Robert Krasinskas chosen as president, Robert Wood, vice-president; Jean Wilkes, secretary; and Janice LaPlante, treasurer. Suzanne Pierce was elected as president of the Student Council, and CarolAnn Krals as secretary. Senior members of the Council were: Donald Dimock, John Dwyer, Janice LaPlante, Jean Wilkes and James Nicholson. It was also announced that Suzanne Pierce and CarolAnn Krals would serve as correspondents to the Webster Times. At school and class elections, Donald Chaffee was elected as Good Government Day Representative, and June Worthington as D.A.R. Representative.

During the active sports year in which Oxford ably competed, John Dwyer, Barry Casey, Elaine Ellis, James Nicholson, Anita Skoglund, and CarolAnn Krals served as captains and co-captains of the various teams and squads.

The hilarious comedy "Nuts in May" was presented by the school on April 17, and the Senior Class was represented by John Dwyer, Joan Dargie, Sandra Richardson, Anita Skoglund, Loran Robbins, Michael Malbon, June Worthington, and CarolAnn Krals.

On April 23, the Senior Banquet was held at Kimballcory's. This affair was a complete social success.

The Senior Prom was held on May 22. This event was highlighted by the selection of Alice Vigeant as queen. In her court were: Janice LaPlante, Roberta LaRose, Sandra Markarian, Anita Skoglund, Suzanne Pierce and Jean Wilkes.

In May, Class Day elections were held and Loran Robbins would give the Will, Donald Chaffee, the Prophecy, Roberta LaRose and Paul Szolusha, the Class Gifts, and CarolAnn Krals, the History. Class Day was held on June 1, Graduation will be June 3, and on June 4, the Senior Class will spend their last day together on the class trip to Martha's Vineyard.

Thus brings to an end the glorious and memorable history of the Class of Nineteen hundred and fifty-nine.

Class Prophecy

My biggest ambition in life as a student at Oxford High was to be "a retired millionaire."

Having reached this goal, I decided it was time to look up my old classmates. In the summer of 1975, I took off in my jet-propelled mobile for a jaunt around the country. I left sunny California early one morning and headed east, taking the route through Death Valley. I traveled miles and miles through desert land—suddenly off in the distance I saw a very shiny object. As I came closer, I found this object to be a large aluminum building, across the front of which there was a sign—MALBON ROCKET COMPANY. Standing in front of the building was my old pal "Mike." I stopped and visited with him and learned that he was supplying the United States Government with all their rocket ships. His chief mechanic was "Chuckie" Smart; and "Chuckie" Pariseau was in charge of the Sales Force. Mike suggested that I go to the southeastern part of Death Valley to "Cranska's Rent-a-Rocket Shop" and rent a "ship" to look up more of the "1959 gang" who were off in space.

In preparing for my trip into space, I went to Arthur Anderson's Space Suit Shop where I found Jean Wilkes working as receptionist. She referred me to Robert Wood, Sales Manager. He showed me four different types of space suits that were designed by Mary DeJesus and Rita Goodnow.

My next endeavor was to reach Cranska's Shop and arrange for a "ship." On arrival I had a pleasant visit with Gordon and his right hand man, Roger Miller. One of our main topics of discussion was our classmates of Oxford High. Cranska informed me that David Emanuelson is in his hide-away on the moon, and is putting his hopped up rocket into good cruising condition. I also learned that Raymond Plasse is in the "clink" for the unlawful manufacture of ray-guns, and that his silent partner Anita Skoglund is baking a cake with an "A" bomb in it to help him escape.

I bid my pals farewell, stepped into my rocket ship and blasted off. I turned on the television just in time to catch TV host Jack Dwyer interviewing the famous movie star, Alice Vigeant.

I landed on Jupiter and visited "Santo's Pickle Parlor" where I listened to Ray LeBlanc and his pumpin' piano lead Sandra Richardson with a bass fiddle, Cynthia Benzie with a tuba, and Ida Mae Forest at the drums. When Ray finished playing he told me that Barry Casey and Danny Roy, after fifteen years of outstanding service in the Armed Forces, had just been released from the "brig." He also told me that Paul Szolusha and Paul LeClaire are trying to reduce in size an atomic reactor to fit their motorcycles.

My journey continued on to Mars where I found Joy Beals operating a jewelry store. She told me that Terry Smith and Sally Dimock Smith were the owners of a successful dairy farm. My visit with Terry and Sally brought forth more news of the "1959 gang." I learned that Terry and Sally sponsor Donald Dimock's effort to perfect a mechanical cow; Loran Robbins is a missionary who goes to distant planets to convert the inhabitants; and Elaine Ellis is president of the Inter-planetary Baseball League.

I left Mars and stopped at Richard Casagranda's space gas station. Twirling around in space with him were three famous mechanics—James Christian, Wilfred Lambert, and Richard Deveau. As "Cassy" filled the tank, he told me that Leroy Cheever and Donald Chalupka are on a very distant planet working on some secret device. I also learned that Kathleen Ryan is employed as a secretary in Chicago for the prominent lawyer—Donald Jary. Next door to "Cassy's" floating station, Irene St. Germain, Nancy Bellows, and Carol Barber work as rocket hops at Jim Sundstrom's Big Dipper Drive-in.

After leaving this man made planet I aimed my ship for Massachusetts and landed at the Oxford Rocket Port, where I was greeted by a sign—WELCOME TO MASSACHUSETTS—your Governess Carol-Ann Krals. It was indeed a pleasure to be back in good old Oxford. I went into Suzanne Pierce's Super Drug Store for a root beer which was served to me by the faithful soda jerk, "Greg" Stone. I found Karen Deveau in charge of the cosmetic department and Jim Nicholson, sweeping floors.

Jim informed me that while Bob Krasinsky is turning gray at his job as Superintendent of the Oxford Schools, his wife, the former Roberta LaRose is trying to stuff a turbo-jet engine into her small M.G. I strolled along to the new fire station where I met Fire Chief Alan Christenson. He informed me that Rosemary Melieka, June Worthington and Carol Shea are secretaries in the United World's Building in Oxford; and Frances Germain, Eleanor Gage, and Diane Ekman are operating Oxford's Business College.

I crossed the street and went into LaPlante's Famous Pizza Palace where I was served by Patricia Paul and Janice Parker. The beautiful murals on the wall were done by the two famous artists: Joan Dargie and Leslie Anderson. While eating, Janice told me that Oxford was very proud of its Fife and Drum Corps, under the direction of Jackie Rider. She also told me that members of the class of 1959 established two other outstanding businesses in the Town: a beauty salon, owned and operated by Barbara Clarke, Claudia McCarthy and Sandra Markarian; and a fabulous fur salon in charge of Charlotte Lamb, Barbara Hewitt and Andrea Govanni.

My "jaunt" had been a most pleasant one—having either met with or learned of all the members of the '59 Class.

I went back to the Oxford Rocket Port—took off in my "ship" and returned to Cranska's Shop in Death Valley where I left the "ship,' picked up my jet-propelled mobile and returned to sunny California to pick up the "duties" of Oxford's Retired Millionaire from the Class of Nineteen hundred fifty-nine.
